MINAS

Guanajuato had its beginnings in the discovery of prodigious silver mines, which at the end of the eighteenth century turned the city into the largest silver producer known up to that time. The first discoveries are shrouded in legend, making it difficult to distinguish reality from fiction.

THE MUMMIES MUSEUM

The mummification in Guanajuato is a spontaneous and natural phenomenon caused by the lack of oxygen in the wooden burial niches or drawers and the absorption of the fluids that come from the body when it begins to decompose. The Mummies museum of Guanajuato has in exhibition 57 bodies including adults and infants that can be observed in 10 rooms. The museum's total collection is 111 mummified bodies and three skulls
